

RMS London's Policy on Relationships

We, River Music School London, strive to create a positive experience for our students through our lessons. This entails a safe environment during lessons and a comfortable association with their tutor.

We are strictly against our tutors developing relationships with students under the age of 18. Upon discovering such incident(s), River Music School London will immediately terminate the tutor's contract, immediately terminate the student's engagement, and if against the UK law will report the incident(s) to the relevant authorities.

We do not condone tutors and students developing relationships of which both are above 18 years of age. As both adults are consenting, we are not at the power to inhibit this, however require that both parties immediately make River Music School London aware of their relationship and agree that River Music School London has no liability or responsibility towards any damage or incident as a result of the agreement made between two consenting adults. We will still provide the opportunity for both parties to raise any questions or concerns privately and/or anonymously, of which all information will be held in confidence unless the incident requires reporting to relevant authorities. Failure to declare the relationship may lead to disciplinary action. We may at our discretion terminate the tutor's contract and/or the student's engagement if there is sufficient cause for concern, or if River Music School London is consequently compromised in any way.
